EDUCATION

ITS VALUE TO KENTUCKY.

Future Development of State's Vast Resources Must Come Through This Channel.

The following interesting article is an extract from an address made by Mrs. Desha Breckenridge before the State Development Association at Louisville:

In Kentucky with every advantage for dairy farming, with the grass that the states south of us do not have and with such a climate that we do not have to shelter our herds in the winter as the states north of us do, we are yet importing the larger part of the butter we use. And the northern creameries are doing us a favor to send us this rendered butter, not good enough for the northern market. In many respects we are simply living on our natural resources.

We are raising up the richness of our land and sending it into the hands of others to make the profit. We have been plundering the wealth of future generations in the destruction of our forest. We are cutting down the timber and sending it out into the states to Michigan for instance, or they are sending it back in furniture and selling to us. We are raising potatoes and sending them to Boston, and in that intellectual center they are making them into Saratoga chips, and sending them back and selling them to us at a profit of 400 per cent. And so with most things. We are content to do the rough work of the country; the unskilled labor which is poorly paid we send, and leave to others the further handling.

If you should wipe out Louisville and Covington and Paducah, all of which are on the edge of the State, you would practically wipe out the manufacturing of the state. Even our wheat, except for one large establishment in Louisville, and one or two smaller ones in Lexington and the interior we send out of the state, and buy it back as flour. The tobacco situation, which in some parts of the state is bordering on civil war, is perhaps due to the fact that we have been content—with only sufficient exception to prove the need of the tobacco and pick the worms off, and let others do the handling. And in the development of our natural resources, the opening up of mines, building of railroads, and the development of timber lands, we have been content to let the outsider make the greater part of the profits. The foreigner has usually engineered these large undertakings; and who will dispute that in the development of the mental traits necessary to organize and carry on large business undertakings, education, generations in fact of mental training, is a factor.

In our own town the local men who first built our street railways sold at a loss to Baltimore men; and when they had made a success of it, local men bought it back; and later sold out again to a Philadelphia syndicate. Only one of the interurban roads running out from Lexington has been built by local men. Even when it comes to day laborers, we are not always able to furnish them; a contract which would have distributed $30,000 in our community was lost a short time since because the men could not be found to do the work. And this does not indicate a shortage.

of men, but rather that so low a standard of living prevails among our uneducated laborers that they are content to work a few days in the week to subsist for the rest of the time on the profits of that. Lexington is not now exporting manufactured products to Chicago as she once did.

We shall not get into the line of commercial development in Kentucky until we get back into the line of educational development. We must realize that "economic civilization" moves forward only as the whole mass of activity becomes more efficient. Every class of the population depends on every other, the highest on the lowest. "Are you a lawyer? Your client never pays you much more than a large fee; but a trained man who works machinery may. Are you a physician? The same is true. Are you a merchant? Your untrained shoemaker can never buy much from you with his 70 cents a day. But a man who earns $4 a day is worth having as a customer. Are you a railroad, etc., etc? Kentucky will not come into her own until we have an ideal of universal education and begin to realize it. Even the high training of a small class of people profits us little.

What will it avail you to find a few experts in the state who will evolve a perfect system of taxation? If the legislators at Frankfort do not represent a constituency who can appreciate this tax system. Neither our laws nor our political and industrial conditions will be above our people. We need not wonder at bad education laws, or laws that give us partisan, political boards of control for our charitable and penal institutions, or the mass of our people remains where it is intellectually.

We have got to educate our people as the forward states are doing if we wish to keep up with them industrially. This means a reasonable education; it means good roads; it means a good common school within the reach of every child in the rural districts as well as in the cities; it means that the common schools there shall be industrial and agricultural training, and that they shall lead up to county high schools, which shall bridge the way to our highest state institution of agricultural and mechanical training.

JOHN HENN

A Native of Germany, Accidentally Struck His Ankle, Resulting in Death From Pneumonia.

Buechel Jan. 20.—John Henn, a German gardener, living on the Bardstown road, met with a horrible accident which resulted in his death on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. While walking along the road Tuesday he accidentally stepped in a wagon rut. His ankle was turned and so badly broken that the fractured bones pierced the ground. Neighbors found him lying on the ground and carried him to his home, where he was attended by Dr. Blankenbaker, of Jeffersonstown. Pneumonia developed from the exposure.

Mr. Henn is survived by his wife, who was Miss Margaret Yann, and three sons, John, Robert and Joel; two daughters, Mrs. Bertha Schell and Margaret Henn, and one grandson, John Schell. He was 38 years of age and was a native of Germany; he came to this country years ago.

Mr. Henn is now very ill, having contracted blood poisoning from his husband and his recovery is doubtful.

The funeral took place Monday at 2 o'clock from the residence. The burial was in Cave Hill Cemetery.

LEGISLATURE

IN SESSION AT FRANKFORT

Not Accomplishing Much So Far—Most of Time Taken Up In Trying To Elect Senator.

The General Assembly of Kentucky Senators and Representatives are taking up nearly all of their time in trying to elect a State Senator. The Democrats have a majority, but owing to the bolt of Senators McNutt, Charlton and Campbell, and Representatives McKnight and Lillard, a deadlock has resulted. Former Governor Wm. O. Bradley, Republican, and J. C. W. Beckham, Democrat, are the nominees, and it is believed that one of these gentlemen will be elected, although there is no telling what the result may be.

William Jennings Bryan, the silver-tongued Nebraskan, spoke in the interests of the Democratic nominee Tuesday and it is believed did much to bring about peace and harmony among the Democrats.

The following are a few of the most important bills that have been introduced:

Ecton—Act to create an excise commission and to prescribe the regulation the manner of granting licenses to sell spirituous, vinous or malt liquors.

By Mr. Newman—An act appropriating $30,000 a year for five years to erect buildings on the State Fair Grounds.

Newman—An act fixing the weight of packages and regulating the trade in wheat, flour and corn meal.

G. A. Taylor—Act declaring the assessment of dogs for 1908 void, no tax to be collected on them.

G. A. Taylor—Act requiring owners of bird dogs to keep them confined from June 1 to August 1 each year.

Watkins—Act to amend the school book law.

Watkins—Act creating a county school board to control schools, employ teachers and build school houses.

Combs—Act appropriating $16,000 to erect the Henry Clay monument.

Combs—Act regulating fees of justice of peace.

KENTUCKY

Swine Breeders' Association Has Successful Meeting In Louisville Last Week.

Farmers Home Journal: The first annual meeting of the Kentucky Swine Breeders' Association was held in Louisville last Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 15th and 16th.

The meeting, in many respects, was a most delightful and profitable one. While the attendance was not as large as would have liked to see it was large enough and enthusiastic enough to indicate the growing interest in breeding of better hogs in Kentucky. It is the breeders who failed to attend who missed a very pleasant and profitable meeting.

The meeting was called to order at the Willard Hotel, at 10 o'clock, p. m., Jan. 15th, by President C. C. Wheeler, of Buochel.

After calling the roll of the members, President Wheeler made a short and appropriate address, in which he congratulated the members on the growing interest in breeding better hogs, and the part this Association is having and fostering this interest.

After the President's address, the enrollment of members for 1908 was made, the list showing many new names added to the membership.

After these two animals were scored and the class exhaustively criticized by Prof. Good, the members again assembled at the Willard Hotel and a general discussion about breeding, feeding and handling breeding sows, was engaged in, which proved very interesting and instructive.

(The President was informed that Col. H. L. Igheart could not remain to the evening session and he was requested to give his address on Private Sales to Public Sales. The address was listened to with close attention, as it was a subject of practical business importance. Col. Igheart favored auction sales.) At 9 o'clock the members assembled in the large dining room of the hotel, where Manager W. Scott Miller had prepared a sumptuous banquet which was highly enjoyed by every one present.

At the conclusion of the banquet,

President Wheeler announced that the election of officers for the ensuing year was in order, stating at the time that he desired to be relieved and that he thought this office should be rotated among members. Mr. J. G. Yeager, of Shelbyville, was unanimously elected President and W. W. Johnson, of Danville, Vice President. M. W. Neal, of Louisville, was re-elected Secretary and Treasurer.

CEMETERY FUND

Amounts to Ninety-Seven Dollars Collected to Date—Work Progressing Nicely.

At the meeting of the Jeffersonstown Cemetery Association last Saturday $97.00 was reported as having been collected to have the old neglected graveyard cleaned and beautified. While some of this money has been expended for work done, which decreases the amount to about $90.00 the committee has hopes of swelling the fund to over $100 by the next meeting.

issued over one hundred years ago that this property was decided to the Presbyterian church, and a committee was appointed to confer with the trustees of that church and ascertain if they were willing to transfer the property to the association, in order that they may take charge of the graveyard and have the necessary improvements made. The committee will report at the next meeting, which is to be held at the office of The Jeffersonian tomorrow, (Friday), at 3 o'clock p. m.

PRESTONIA.

The offer of extra votes in the contest during this month has spurred the candidates into doing the most efficient work since the contest began. Since January first sixty-seven subscriptions have been added to our already large list.

Miss Lillie Netherton has evidently just awakened to the fact that a $5 diamond ring is worth working for. She received eight extra votes from her yesterday and two previously given to her, make 1,000 votes added to her total. She moves up from seventh place to fifth position. Miss Netherton and Hoke also add several hundred to their totals.

The race is beginning to get interesting, and no doubt, many changes will take place within the next few weeks, as one or two "dark horses" are rumored to be in the race. Everything depends on systematic work. Ask your friends to help you. It is not too late for new entries; over two months yet remain and the field is still open. Read the advertisement in another column for particulars.

Special!

To encourage and reward the contestants for their work The Jeffersonian will give 2,000 extra votes to the lady bringing in the greatest number of subscribers between now and 4 o'clock, February 1, 1908. To the lady bringing in the second largest number will be given 1,000 extra votes and to the third 500 votes will be awarded.

Votes are given on subscriptions only, so go to work for your favorite, as the contest is drawing to a close.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Col. Lum Simons Converts An Old Building Into a Beautiful Modern Home.—Handsome Barn.

By long odds the handsomest and most complete barn in Jefferson county is owned by Col. Simons at Riverview Park. It is a two story building surrounded by a beautiful green lawn which is gay with old fashioned flowers and bordered by a hedge of honeysuckle which blooms almost constantly from spring until fall.

The interior of the barn is finished in native woods and the floor is of concrete, spotlessly clean. There is running water for the horses and large airy box stalls are ornamented with Japanese fret work. There is ample space for eight vehicles on the first floor and also a harness room all lighted by electricity. Up stairs are two good sized bed rooms and a bath.

Col. Simons certainly has a genius for making improvements and has worked wonders on his place. The house itself has undergone many changes. It was built originally by the Gaars. Col. Simons has improved it by building a wide veranda of stone which encircles the building and is ornamented with hanging baskets of flowers, potted plants, gay colored rugs and delightful lounging chairs.

The color scheme of the interior decorations is principally in old rose and wood green. The drawing room being in the former, and the sitting room in the latter color. In the last named apartment is an exquisite cabinet in oiled walnut and glass, the panels of glass being lined with soft green draperies which matches the hue of the walls. One passes through the hall which is a study in greens, waving boughs are outlined against the soft ivory tint of the walls, the floor is covered with moss green rugs and through the open doorway in summer, one sees the river gleaming under the trees and further off rise the purple knobs of Indiana.

The dining room is fairly radiant with lovely china and sparkling glass, and with its tiled floor, walls drenched with its green walls and soft draperies makes a charming picture.

There are few homes in the county as beautiful as this. The bath room would tempt a tramp to take a bath with its tiled floor, walls drenched with its green walls and soft draperies makes a charming picture.

PUBLICATION DAY CHANGED.

Beginning with the next issue The Jeffersonian will be issued on Friday instead of Thursday as heretofore. This change is made necessary by the late arrivals of communications from our correspondents, and from the fact that more time is required in which to set up the news letters in type. Several interesting communications were left out of today's issue on account of reaching this office too late in the week.

Trusting this will meet with the hearty approval of our many readers we are Very truly,

The Jeffersonian.

The dog that is not worth paying one dollar a year on is not worth having. We say let Ed Crean's dog tax law stand. Sheep are worth more than dogs—unless it be some "mamma's tootsie."

And the forest nature's green,
When the valleys meet the hills
And the earth is clothed and sheen;
Where fruits and grain are plentiful
And the crystal waters prime,
This is Jefferson county's picture
As it looks in simple rhyme."

While this little poem does not do Jefferson county justice, yet it will give one a conservative idea of what the county is and what exists here. A county where all is peace and plenty, where lay some of the richest farms in all Kentucky, and some at prices within the reach of the poorest class of people. Its location is one of its chief charms—and, by the way, this is the first thing to be considered in looking for a place to live—and, in view of the fact that the land is especially adapted to gardening and fruit culture, with interurban electric lines running through all parts of the county, furnishing ample facilities for carrying the products to Louisville where the highest market prices can always be obtained, it seems to us that Jefferson county is the best place on earth to locate.

The establishment of a canning factory is being planned for Louisville, which would be a great advantage to the growers of vegetables of the county. But why go to Louisville? Why not locate one in or around Jeffersonton, or at some other place out in the county? The closer the factory to the growers, the better. An enterprise of this kind is a great thing for the people of this locality, and the gardeners should get together and have one established. The factory can afford to pay satisfactory prices and still make enough money for themselves. Those interested should call on Dr. W. E. Baxter or Clarence Sale, Board of Trade Building, Louisville, for particulars, and request that the location of the factory be around Jeffersonton.

Two dollars that had been taken into a till were holding a conversation together. This was not an unusual circumstance, because everybody understands that money talks. "I would hate to be the wife of the man who owns us now," said one dollar to the other. "If he squeezes her as he does us, he will break every bone in her body." "Notice, however, said the other coin, "that man who squeezes a dollar hardly ever squeezes a dollar hardly ever squeezes his wife."—Ex.

If you are the kind of a fellow that squeezes the dollar suppose you bring it in for a year's subscription to The Jeffersonian, and let us squeeze it—we have no wife.

In the death of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Haldeman, Bruce Haldeman, president of the Courier-Journal and Times Companies, and Col. W. B. Haldeman editor of the Times, have the sympathy of the entire press fraternity of the state in the loss of their mother by death, which occurred last Monday. Mrs. Haldeman was 81 years old and leaves hosts of friends who loved her for her many acts of charity and lovable disposition. Although advanced in age, her efforts were enlisted in behalf of the Confederate monument in Louisville, which she did much to bring to success.

With seven churches, a bank, newspaper, creamery, flour mill, several general merchants, first-class blacksmith, lively stable, harness maker, contractors of all kinds, and the terminus of an electric line from Louisville, isn't Jeffersonton a good place to locate? Talk up the town and it will not be long until the limits will have to be extended to make room for the new comers.

LAST Sunday being a spring-like day, every car was crowded bringing people out from Louisville to get a glimpse of the beautiful country. Building lots are plentiful and cheap out this way. We wonder why more of the city people do not come out to stay.

REALIZING that the good people of Jeffersonton had no street lights by which to see their way to church Sunday night, the dear old moon came to their assistance and illuminated the way.

WHAT Is a Democrat?

ELVIRA SYDNOR MILLER.

Oh, the meanness of woman—the heartless ingratitude of the wearers of petticoats. An elderly gentleman of Louisville has been paying the most fervid attention to a daughter of the county—bouquets of flowers, boxes of candy, carriage drives amenable with suppers at some of the swell cafes and gardens—people looked aghast when they saw the venerable man blossom out in a silk hat, gray trousers, a button hole bouquet, and other symptoms of second childhood.

He kept the telephone warm with tender messages while Cupid shook with laughter as he listened to the calf-like bleatings daily and nightly. He is a nice old bird, with many golden feathers, but the girl was one of these coquettes and soon gave him the cold shoulder.

They tell the cruel tale that one afternoon recently she was driving in the country when the ancient flame passed in a carriage with an elderly woman.

"Look, look! said a companion nudging the girl in the ribs, 'there's Mr. Cash and some one coming.'"

"Ah," murmured the heartless flirt coldly, "I don't care to look at decayed vegetation."

And it was for this that the century plant had grown giddy in swell clothes, that he had said and done things which made his youngest child hood hang his head and blush, and after it all to be passed up and by as a bit of decayed vegetation.

The most expensive thing of all
You'll find from day to day,
Is that which seems to come at all
For which we do not pay.
But as gratitude's a costly thing
Say folks not over nice,
We'll have to settle yet by jing,
At forty times the value.

One of the most gifted women in the county has made good by her artistic work. She is great on menu and card party score cards and does most beautiful things besides. This woman has a garden in which she makes studies from nature, but she does not turn a cold shoulder to folly as it files, and her sketches on the golf field, tennis court, at the boating club, theater and ball are exquisitely true to nature. Recently a warm friend took some of her menu cards to dispose of and succeeded instantly. No one knows who bought them, save the friend, but it happened that they were gaily enough to make the head swim—ballet dancers poised on the toe, rigged out in red and dazling to behold—bachelors garlanded with grapes and holding flags in the blue air. All of these and a lot more delicious figures were on those cards and oh, horror! they were used by the buyer to decorate the table at a dinner given to clergymen.

What these gentlemen said when they saw the lovely figures on those cards decorated like the salad with a French dressing, heaven alone knows: Possibly they cast them over their shoulders with the devout exclamation, "get thee behind me, Satan," but I have my doubts. They were a success, and now the artist has orders from New York—but, let me add, not from the clergy.

He walked the straight and narrow path
And longings of ambition filled him.
But ah, he woke the public wrath.
A cocktail served at breakfast killed him.

He rescued women from the waste
And saved them from a watery fate.
But Gospel says, the public slave—
He took to water far too late.

Heaven be thanked that one of the pet fakes inflicted upon a patient public seems to have given up the ghost. This was a so called charity benefit. It was a gross scheme and the man who originated it is said to have retired from business with a fortune. The plan is simple—you go to some church or society and offer the members a certain sum of money, cash down, in return for the use of its name. The church accepts the offer and the charity worker then goes ahead, prints tickets and gets some one to arrange a program, musical and dramatic agencies go out on the streets selling the tickets and the public is told that the entertainment is for the benefit of Zion church, or whatever the name of the church may be. The press is asked to give free notices of the affair and fancying it is a genuine charity these notices are forthcoming. The name covers the scheme like a snow white blanket and people who fancy they are contributing to a religious institution are merely assisting the charity worker to make a nice little pile. The agents receive a certain commission for their work and some times the sale of tickets alone brings in five times the money paid for the use of the church's name. Then come the advertisements on the program these are paid in money or taken out in trade, the talent employed for the night, the refreshments for the evening, a hall is secured at a reduction on account of the charitable nature of the entertainment and then the affair is pulled off in a blaze of glory with perhaps a lot of the church members in the boxes on free tickets. The public, however, go on to the true inwardness of these affairs after a year or so, and now it is a green or serry worker who would try to engineer one to a finish.

About The Dog Tax Law.

Senator Jack Chinn, of Harrodsburg is preparing to make war on the hell introduced by Senator Smith, which was stamped No. 1 by the clerk which provides for the repeal of the dog tax law.

"This bill will never be repealed," said Senator Chinn, "for the members understand it. In the mountain counties, where the people are fighting the measure, more money will revert to them than they will pay out under the law. In Mercer county last year we had $1,500 worth of sheep killed and $2,200 was paid out under the law. This $700 from this county alone goes to help the fund. Again men who have never before paid their poll tax are paying it now. Why? Because they are ashamed to walk up and pay on their dog and not pay on themselves."

Thus, it will be seen, that the attempt to repeal this bill will cause one of the liveliest fights of the season.—Brandenburg Messenger.

The best way to help your county paper is to patronize its advertisers and tell them where you saw their ad. Will you help?

TRUSTS.

The Subject For Discussion at the Meeting of the Current Events Club Held Here Jan. 16.

The Current Events Club met with Mrs. Leonard Cominger Jan. 16. The meeting was conceded to be one of the most interesting since the club was organized. Mrs. Viola B. Howell finding that the ladies confessed their ignorance concerning the trusts, decided to study that question and have an old fashioned debate. The members entered into the spirit of it and some very excellent papers were the results.

Mrs. Clarence Erdman and Mrs. Howell deserves special praise for arguments. Mrs. Will Hunsinger and Mrs. Robert Owens were so sincere and enthusiastic in remarks as to convince one of the judges then and there to decide in their favor. Only five minutes were required by the judges. Mesdames J. A. Thomas, Cunnock and W. J. Semolin, to return a verdict of two to one against the trusts.

Although a good deal of feeling was displayed, the meeting ended pleasantly amid much merriment.

After refreshments were served, Miss Philura Cunnock, of Louisville, allured the ladies with two excellent recitations.

The club then adjourned to meet with Miss Carrie B. Hardin Jan. 30.

It is estimated that one acre of corn in the soil will furnish three cows all theilage they will eat for a period of 200 days, 40 pounds a day each. Your food will not be good unless you use good food.
